The Dayton-Wright Brothers Airport is once again inviting the community to its annual Runway Fest open house - its sixth annual family-friendly festival - which will take place from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Friday, August 11th.

"Summer just wouldn't be complete without the Runway Fest at the Dayton-Wright Brothers Airport," said Terry Slaybaugh, director of aviation for the City of Dayton. "Dayton residents and visitors gather from the entire region to celebrate aviation and enjoy this annual event."

Runway Fest is an evening that the whole family can enjoy, including a live performance by Ashley Martin Band, inflatables for the kids and multiple aircraft displays. The young-and young at heart-can visit the bounce house, have their faces painted, and take to the sky with airplane rides all while enjoying the atmosphere of a fun, family-friendly evening.
